The unique way the Outbacker provides all band performance is something they call the "wander lead." The wanderlead is coiled around the outside of the antenna, and one end is inserted via a banana plug into a jack near the base of the antenna. The antenna has a series of silver coated brass jacks recessed into the fiberglass,

This antenna has worked well for me in fixed-portable usage on hotel room metal balconies using a "jaws" clamp mount from High Sierra products, and on Field Day using the Outbacker Outpost ground mount. However, don't buy an Outbacker antenna with the remotest expectation you can get any after-the-sale service.
