You should stand up straight when taking the oath and when affirming or swearing say, "I Do" clearly. Remember to sit up straight in the witness chair and be careful not to slouch or lean on the stand. Speak frankly, openly, and naturally, as you would to any friend or neighbor in a more formal setting.

The custom in a trial is that the expert witness takes the stand to first answer questions about their qualifications as an expert. If the judge and the opposing counsel are satisfied then the witness continues to testify about what her opinion in the case happens to be. This process is called a voir dire of the witness.
